Forecast for Friday 17 Jun 2022

Weather: Dry for a time in the morning with early brightness then cloudy. A band of rain will move southwards across the Mourne Mountains later in the morning, fizzling out later in the afternoon. Dry, much brighter weather following.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 700m: 80% then chances decreasing to 40% later in the morning, improving 90% by early evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Good visibility for a time in the morning then becoming misty as rain moves in and turning poor in more persistent rain and lowering cloud bases. The canopy of cloud mostly above the tops at first, lowering 600 to 700m later in morning, lifting and breaking up again by early evening.
